

WHAT VINITA DON'T NEED

common loafing place for our boys (and men for that matter), who would look much better at home. Cities usually consider such places the rendezvous of bad characters—bootleggers, bootleggers and law-breakers.

Citizens of Vinita, did you ever consider the damaging influence of such places on the children of the town in comparison with the very small revenue you receive for such privileges. I believe if you compare the figures economically you will find the balance on the wrong side of the ledger which shortage will have to be charged to the account of loss instead of profit. There is no money in the pool hall for any one but the man that owns it. It's very nature contaminates every thing it touches.

It looks good to the average stranger who visits a city in this twentieth century to see the saloon and billiard hall signs conspicuous by their absence. He will make up his mind that this is the place he has long looked for as a home and a proper place to educate and school his family.

There are young men and young women twenty-five years old in Kansas who never seen or entered a licensed saloon. Conditions in Kansas can be duplicated in Oklahoma. Our watchword should be: Give us more schools and less billiard halls; more churches and less whisky joints; more morality and less criminality; more love and less hatred and revenge; more good citizens and less law violations. There are citizens in our town who will bitterly criticize the position of the writer of this article. But just let them soberly review the facts set forth in the case and compare good morals and decency with the ruinous policy of the different evils set forth in this article. A strict comparison would be good for the cause by an honest man with honest views. We very much expect the opposition to kick and show their teeth. We would be very badly disappointed if they would quietly submit to the laws of the land and the voice of the people. If they are contentious and obstinate in violation of law the only remedy is to inflict the severest penalties of both fines and imprisonment. By this method we usually rid the community of those leeches on society and good morals.

My next article will be: "What Vinita Needs."

SEA'S PERILS EVER PRESENT

Maneuvers and Sham Battles Cannot Be Held Without the Element of Danger.

It is the great distinction of the sea that its peace maneuvers are never sham fights. To whatever branch or grade of the naval service a seaman may belong, when he is on active service he is always face to face with "the real thing." A mistake of any sort, a pardonable miscalculation, a momentary failure of nerve or attention, or even some small unavoidable accident, may involve the forfeit of many lives. Hence the magnificent training the sea imposes in manliness, resourcefulness and self-control. The submarine branch of the navy has undoubtedly risks and dangers of its own, as the sad tale of previous disasters plainly shows; and when a catastrophe unhappily occurs it is of a nature to make a profound impression upon the public. But in relation to the number of submarines in commission, and to the constant exercise they undergo, the picked officers and men who serve in them do not incur a risk out of all proportion greater than their comrades in other branches. Danger and risk are no peculiar prerogative of the submarine. Daily faced in the routine of duty and daily overcome, they form the very foundation of naval character, and are a pledge, in no small degree, of the security upon which as a nation we repose.

BRAVE EFFORT AT ENGLISH

Japanese Correspondent Knew What He Wanted, Though Meaning Was Rather Vague to Others.

For the genuine "English as she is spoke" we must go abroad among educated Orientals, who can spell and read English to perfection, but find it impossible to master the syntax of our language. A firm dealing in fishing tackle, having sent a circular to a merchant in Tokyo, Japan, received the following communication:

"Dear Sir in Yours: We should present to your company the bamboo fishing rod, a net basket and reel, as we have just convenience; all those were very rough and simple to you laughing for your kind reply which you sent us the catalog of fishing tackle last, etc. Wishing we that now at Japan there is was not in prevailing fish gaming, but fishermen in scarcely there now, but we do not measure how the progression of the germ of the fishing game beforehand. Therefore, we may yield of feeling to restock in my store your company's fishing tackle, etc. Should you have the kindness to send a such further country's even in a few partake when we send the money in ordering of them, should you?"

"I am yours, yours truly."—Detroit Free Press.

Goethe's Birthday.

An amusing story, taken from Bode's book on Goethe, appears in a Paris contemporary. In August, 1818, Goethe went to Carlsbad for the cure, and placed himself under the care of Dr. Rehbein. One morning when he rose he requested Charles, his domestic, to place a bottle of red wine and a glass in each of the two windows in the room.

Then the poet walked round and round the apartment, stopping at each window to drink a glass of wine. When he had nearly emptied the bottles the doctor arrived. "Ah," said Goethe, "you are come. Do you know it is my birthday?" "No," said the doctor, "it is not your birthday. It falls tomorrow."

Only the production of the almanac could convince Goethe that he was a day out in his reckoning. When he discovered his mistake he gave vent to a strong expression which Scott puts in the mouth of Capt. Nanty Ewart, and, after a long pause, turning to the doctor, said: "Then I have got drunk for nothing."

The Lucky Number.

An amusing story concerning the Greek naval lottery appears in a Paris journal. It seems that the tickets were hawked about the Piræus and were eagerly purchased from the combined motive of patriotism and the excitement attendant upon a gamble.

One day a hawker stopped outside a milk shop and, seeing an ass standing by laden with eggs, cheese and butter, to tantalize the animal took one of his tickets and gave it to the beast. The poor beast was struggling with it in the hope of extracting something eatable, when a grocer on the opposite side of the way who had seen what was happening, rushed across and rescued the ticket. "That ticket," he said to the hawker, "will win a prize, and I will buy it." He did so and the ticket drew a prize of thirty thousand francs.

Awkward.

"I am pleased to meet you again," he said.

"Thank you," replied the lady, who had once been his wife.

"How are the children?"

"What children?"

"Ours."

"We never had any."

"Oh, I beg your pardon. It was very stupid of me. I mistook you for some one else."

THE SUREST WAY TO ACCUMULATE MONEY—'SPEND LESS THAN YOU EARN'

All others have their advantages and disadvantages, mostly disadvantages. It is no small undertaking to save money, as many of us can bear witness. But getting down to the bottom of things, just think what you could save if you could eliminate all expense for food. You can't, of course, because a good healthy body and mind must have good, substantial nourishment to keep up your earning power, and a certain amount of expense in that direction is a prime necessity. But you can save money on the cost of your food, if you will only investigate. On some articles it will amount to, say 15 per cent, on some others 40 per cent, but you can effect a saving every day if you buy at Garrison's C. O. D. It would be a great deal of trouble, but if you just kept count of the pennies and dimes thus saved, you would be surprised. It would, in all probability, explain how some of your neighbors manage to live comfortably and enjoy life on a smaller income than you have. Try it out—prove it yourself.
